46.) strcmp calls for character pointers, not characters. A single character is a cstring. A cstring continuing only a single character is, but these are not pointers at all.

30.) value = atof(str);

if(strcmp(str1, str2) == 0)

cout << "They are the same!\n";</pre>

32.)